Mediators are being required to become more diversified in their training as the needs of families become more diversified. The advancing age of our population combined with our belief that all citizens deserve quality of life has resulted in elder care issues steadily finding their way into this field.

Who should attend: Lawyers, physicians, nurses, psychologists, social workers, mediators, educators and other health care professionals wishing to enhance their knowledge and mediation skills in this emerging area. The sessions will be responsive to questions and issues raised by participants. The general public is welcome to attend the morning session. The afternoon session is intended for mediation skills training.

Topics include:

- ✱ What is eldercare mediation?
- ✱ Attitudes towards aging
- ✱ Grief and end of life issues
- ✱ Health care directives
- ✱ Financial issues
- ✱ Eldercare issues that could create conflict in families.
- ✱ Unique characteristics that require a mediator's attention
- ✱ Where to get help
